TARRYTOWN NY

Welcome to ye olde Hackley School

May 12, 1983, we held a Medieval Festival. Ladies and Knights came from afar to see the work and talent of the students. Come take a look.

Dedication

"Good Afternoon.

Every year, we dedicate the yearbook to a member of the faculty or administration who has been an integral part of the Hackley community.

Today we would like to recognize a man who has been at Hackley since 1966, who left for only one sabbatical year. He is well-liked among the faculty and a guide and friend to many a student.

When he is not on the Hackley campus, he is busy with his numerous hobbies and interests. This teacher is an avid sailor and a gifted journalist. He has combined these talents to contribute free-lance articles to several magazines.

Aside from these personal hobbies, he has been a dedicated social worker. He founded the Tarrytown chapter of Amnesty International and devoted much time and effort to the boat people.

On campus, he has been involved in many activities. In addition to his consistent work for Amnesty International, he helped with the Refugee Committee and has recently assisted a student in founding an environmental club. He also teaches Modern European History and he has coached hockey and tennis.

Yet we have not even mentioned this teacher's major function at Hackley as the director of college placement. His success in this field is outstanding; one needs only to look at the college acceptance lists to be convinced of his ability. Perhaps even more importantly, however, he is a friend to every senior who passes through Hackley School.

He is understanding and clever, thorough and honest. He offers direction and he offers support. In short, this teacher is an extraordinary man, a wonderful instructor, guide and friend. Will Mr. Bill Mayher please come forward."

Urbanization and secularization created an educational revolution during the eleventh century. The typical scholastic day began at five or six in the morning, classes usually being held in the church. The students sat on hard benches or on the straw-covered floor, taking notes with styluses on wax tablets. The emphasis was placed on grammar and rhetoric, with theology, philosophy, and canon law as added disciplines.

The schools of the Middle Ages offered no French grammar, composition, or literature. No languages were taught except for Latin, not even Greek. Latin was a living tongue in medieval times: it was spoken by priests and educated people all over Europe. The study of Latin grammar was the basis of learning.

Arithmetic involved the computus, a body of rules for determining the dates of movable feasts. The medieval scholar learned something of the properties of numbers, especially ratio and proportion, as well as the propositions of Euclid's first book of geometry. With the twelfth century came the introduction of the Arabian system of numbers. This system, with its simple nine digits, and its symbol for zero, was far less complicated than that which used Roman numerals.

The scientific part of the curriculum was the quadrivium. The medieval pupil was taught relatively little true scientific knowledge, but was instead given a smattering of natural history from popular encyclopedias of the Dark Ages. Medieval men saw their world as one in which all things and all men had their places, ordained by God, fixed and unchanging. A map of the world shows a circular earth composed of three continents of equal size: Asia, Africa, and Europe. Early medieval music was primarily vocal, with instruments used only for accompaniment. The earliest compositions for instruments alone date back to the thirteenth century. By the fourteenth century concerts were held by orchestras with thirty-six kinds of instruments. Art in the early Middle Ages was almost entirely religious. Sculpture and painting existed only in the church, which had been designed to display mural paintings, stained-glass windows, and an altar bright with glittering gold and stones.

In the early Middle Ages the Church controlled most education. Almost every monastery, cathedral, or important church maintained a school. These schools were primarily intended for children who had been vowed to a religious life, but for a small fee many schools accepted youngsters from local towns or villages. By the middle of the fourteenth century privately endowed schools began to arise. These provided for the priest to teach children in his spare time.

Logic gave medieval men a new understanding based on faith; it was an instrument of order in a chaotic world. Logic opened a window on to an orderly and systematic view of the earth, and of man's mind. People were no longer required to accept without understanding. Contrarily, they observed, defined, classed, and understood by rational deduction. The rise of reason was exalted as a method of securely comprehending divine truth.

Football

The 1982 football season was both disappointing and encouraging. It was disappointing in that the record was four wins and five losses, a losing record for the first time in several years. The season was encouraging in that the team was in every game that it played and many sophomores were starting. Prospects for next year are most promising with the return of Herbert Allen, Robert Hawkin, Mark Ohm and others.

At the start of the season, the coaches thought that the team would be able to give their opponents a good game if the team could stay healthy. In the past years, the number of players on the squad has been relatively low, but injuries have been few in number. This year was quite different. There were more players on the team than in years, but injuries were more numerous than memory can recall. Before the season even had a chance to start, starting halfback and co-captain Xavier Eikerenkoetter was lost for the season. Subsequently, almost every game found one player forced to the sideline for one problem or another. Frequently players had to miss a game or two before they were able to return.

The season started poorly with a loss to very powerful McBurney. The second week saw the team bounce back and beat a public high school — Tappan Zee — in a very exciting game. A decisive victory over New York Military Academy came next, and then came successive losses to Brewster High School, Poly Prep and Riverdale. The toughest loss of the entire fall was to Horace Mann. Three sophomores and one freshman started on defense. With the score 16-12 in Hackley's favor and less than two minutes to go, Horace Mann had the ball on their own 10-yard line. Successive passes were completed, and a touchdown was scored with seventeen seconds left on the clock. Team members were stunned and thoughts of the game lingered for several days in the minds of all who were there.

The last game of the season was played against St. Dominicks of Oyster Bay, and the final score was 20-8 in Hackley's favor. The team played extremely well, and the coaches consider this game as the beginning of the new season.

Junior Kimathi Evans was the leading rusher with 573 yards in seven games. Evans was a standout at defensive rover back as well. Departing seniors are Co-Captain Robert M. Akin IV, Richard Burroughs, Harry Lawson and Athanasios Pardalis.

Field Hockey

The girls' field hockey team started the season with a full returning defense and two returning offensive players. The team hoped for an extremely successful season; however, their record was 5-3-5. Nevertheless, the team won the Ivy League Championship.

The season consisted of numerous tied games, and not until the final four games did the team work well together to defeat the opponents. The eighteen players, of which ten were seniors, worked hard to have a winning season. The defense and goalie Jana Craston allowed under fifteen goals to enter the cage in thirteen games. This is an extraordinary feat. The offense worked well together; and Ruth Walter, Lani Roy, and Evy Cranston led the team in scoring.

The Ivy League Championship was definitely the highlight of the season. Defeating both Horace Mann (5-2) and Poly Prep (2-0) were extremely difficult challenges that led the team to being the Champions of the Ivy League. In the first game, the offense clicked together as never before. Linda Paris, Ruth Walter, Evy Craston, and Lani Roy all scored. Meg Maher, Nancy Goler, Lisa Marra, Allison Kirstein, Shevaun Mackie, Pam Stewart, Anne Rudden, Betsy Sugahara, and Jana Craston all played with incredible force on defense. In the latter game the team also played extraordinarily. The championship was won in honor of the coach, Ms. Maryanne Cardillo; consequently, the team gave the plaque to her with the expectation that she will hang it in the school for the following year.

Ms. Cardillo and co-captains Linda Paris and Nancy Goler were all happy with the outcome of the season. Co-captains will be Pam Stewart and Shevaun Mackie for the 1983 season. Although the team is losing ten seniors, the hope remains that Shevaun Mackie, Pam Stewart, Ruth Walter, Lani Roy, Sharon Learner, Evy Craston, Anne Rudden, and Betsy Sugahara will keep the title of Ivy League Champions.

Hackley tries to get positions

The girls' varsity soccer team had an astounding 1982 season: eight wins, four losses, and one tie. It has been four years since the team has had a record as good as this one.

The season began at a fast pace — with a 3-1 victory against Trinity; during this game, the entire team played aggressively and kept organized throughout the offensive, midfield, and defensive lineups. This was a solid start, but Hackley lost the next game to Fieldston. The team got back into action, and, in its next two games, beat both Storm King and Dwight Englewood. However, Hackley then suffered defeat, first to Masters and then to Horace Mann. Motivated by a desire to play up to its abilities and determined to take control of the field, the team went on the beat Harvey, to tie with Sacred Heart, and to beat Trinity and Horace Mann. The team then entered the Storm King Invitational Tournament, beat both Storm King and Milbrook, and won the tournament. The last game of the season, Hackley vs. Masters, was tied until the last three minutes of a double overtime, when Masters put in the winning goal. Perhaps this was not the highnote on which the team had hoped to end, but all in all, the season was unusually fine.

In all probability nobody expected girls' soccer to do as well as it did: there were not a lot of girls who went out for the team and stayed on it — only eighteen, to be exact — and this wasn't even enough to make both a varsity and a junior varsity. But these eighteen girls proved themselves to be stiff competition, even for the larger teams. A lot of credit should go to the players who had the patience to attend practice every day, even if they didn't get equal playing time.

Special recognition for the soccer season was given to co-captain Meg Cimino and to Marjorie McNaughton, bot of whom received the MVP award for the team; and Anne Hanrahan received the MVP award for the Storm King Invitational Tournament. Team captains for next year are Marjorie McNaughton, Laura Polsen, and Margaret Scarcella.

Skillfully avoiding oponnents

The Varsity Soccer team had a truly outstanding season. They finished with a 15-1-1 record, swept the Storm King tournament with two shutouts, and were Ivy League and Fairchester League champions, an unprecedented feat.

There were superior individual performances at all positions. goalie David Rosoff (Co-Captain and MVP) registered an incredible 9 shutouts in 17 games. Furthermore, his intensity and leadership sparked the team throughout the season. The defense, anchored by talented seniors Doug Hill and Peter Canoni in the center, with Colin Manning and Rich Yaffa on the wings, were truly awesome. Their feat of allowing only 15 goals in 17 games should be a long-standing record.

Hackley's midfield knew no equal in the league. Co-Captain David Britton played center halfback with an expertise bordering at times on brilliance. As playmaker he ran the offense, but his hustle and determination made him a dominant force on defense as well. David had 6 goals on the season, and was second in assists with 12. David was ably assisted on the wings by Farzad Khosrowshahi and Dan Mackenzie. Farzad's smooth, elegant passes and superior vision of the game complemented Danny's aggressive tackling, blinding acceleration, and excellent ball control skills. Will Gay saw much action this season; his hustle, defensive orientation, and strong left foot were quite a help in crucial situations.

On offense, Kaveh Khosrowshahi tore up the league. A strong, durable, and very speedy center forward, he posted 23 goals and 13 assists, both team and league leading marks. Kaveh was Most Valuable Player of the Storm King Tournament on the strength of four goals and three assists over a two-game span. Kaveh was assisted in scoring duties by newcomer Peter Kim, a highly-skilled forward with a deadly shot. Peter tallied 11 goals and 4 assists for the season. The left wing varied with opponents the team faced; Peter Slater, Terry Mann, Eric Wechsler, and Adil Rizvi all contributed forcefully, with combined marks of 11 goals and 8 assists.

With the loss of only five seniors, mostly from the defense, the squad should be very strong next year, and must be favored to repeat their incredible "double championship."

This year's cross country squad increased from five to sixteen runners with captains Ross Towbin and Chuck Toepfer. Along with confident Coach Hummel, the team improved their season record by a wide margin; they finished with six wins and eight losses. The "top seven" leading scorers were Doug "Fu Man" Chu, Darin Gurney, Rudd Mackenzie, Chuck Toepfer, Ross Towbin and the Vollweiler duo, Jill and David. Eighth graders Eric Amdursky and Darin Gurney added to the team's revived strength.

The highlights of the season occured in the ivy league championships at Van Cortlandt Park. There David Vollweiler won the JV race, and his sister, Jill, a freshman, placed second in the girls' race only to a prospective olympic runner.

The Hackley cross country team looks forward to a successful 1983 season with its new captain David Vollweiler, despite its loss of seven seniors, and hopes the trend of participation initiated this year will continue in many future seasons on the hilltop.

Girls' Basketball

The Girls' Varsity Basketball team had a good season this year. They won the Fairchester League Title and finished with a 15-5 record. Throughout the season there were many close games that had all the spectators and the team on edge.

The team not only had many exciting games, but also had fun finding them. They enjoyed taking a tour of Brooklyn, looking for Poly Prep, with Coach Cardillo at the wheel. Other "fun" experiences were listening to singing on the bus, making fun of their managers, eating at Nathans, wearing new warm-ups to school, being 15-5, and beating our former rivals, Rye Country Day and Wright Tech.

Margaret "Magic" Scarcella had another outstanding season. She scored over 500 points this season. She was the team's captain and MVP. She also became MVP of the Fairchester League All Star Game (which was won by Hackley's team), and later all league. Nancy Goler, the shortest member of the team and the team's only senior, also made all league. Nancy and Jackie Stern went to the All Star Game with Margaret. Other important players were Jane Shibetti, Ruth Walter, Laura Straus, Evy Craston, Lani Roy, Jane Williams and Mari Howard. The team grew to 10 players this year and they are only losing one senior.

This year's team had a lot of spirit and enthusiasm which they intend to carry over into next year's season. Watch for this team next year, they're going to be amazing.

Swimming

The perenially strong swim team braced itself for what was to be its most trying year, due to the loss of many outstanding senior swimmers. As a result, the emphasis this year was on practicing hard including, long workouts during the week, as well as practices over the Christmas vacation and during exams.

The practices were not in vain. All of the meets went right down to the wire, especially a heartbreaking two-point loss against Columbia Prep. Nevertheless, strong performances by captain Tom Grossman in the butterfly, Takao Hensch in the 100 backstroke and 200 individual medley, and the ever dependable Bruce Dunbar, who broker former olympian Bobby Hackett's record at Horace Mann and missed the Ivy League record by only one second, in the 200 and 500 freestyle helped pace the team, to a 4-3 overall record, and a 3-2 league record. The girls, led by captain Meg Cimino in the freestyle events and Betsy Sugahara in the backstroke, were extremely powerful as usual, and many of them went to the state championships along with Dunbar.

The season ended with the Ivy League Championships at Trinity with Hackley coming in second place. Tom Grossman, Bruce Dunbar, and Takao Hensch received All-League honors, and Betsy Sugahara received honorable mention. Next year's team will most likely be led by this year's MVP Bruce Dunbar, captains Tim Perell, Shevaun Mackie, and Laura Polsen, Takao Hensch and eighth grade diving sensation Robert Silverman. This difficult year ended victoriously because, in Coach Dave Allison's words, "we had a great deal of depth, and everyone fulfilled his commitment to the team."

Wrestling

The Hackley Wrestling Team worked hard this year although the record does not show it. The team consisted of many underclassmen who show great potential but need experience. Some of them, for example David Volweiler, Jeff Gould and Henry Williams, did a great job and defeated many reputable opponents. Seniors Bill Park and Now Saito (a newcomer and judo expert) had several victories. The team was led by Damon Ploumis, who placed second and third in the Ivy and Fairchester league tournaments respectively and Howard Nowes who was Fairchester champion. Next year the great potential will be released and a massacre will ensue.

Squash

The Hackley squash team improved its record immensely since their first season last year. Finishing with 5 and 2, the eight-man team coached by Mr. Variano and captain Steve Field practiced at rented courts in Tarrytown and Mamaroneck and played a tough non-league schedule. Field and stars Adil Rizvi and Larry Marcus held the top three seeds all season, while Charles Sanford, Josh Chervokas and John Albright, along with new members Marc Anstendig and Doug Ikelheimer, contributed to the outstanding performance. With a loss of three players the squash squad will face the challenge of matching this year's success next winter. Keep that ball flying!

The track team increased in size this year. Many students took an interest in this demanding sport. John Taylor, this year's MVP, led the team in experience and skill and although he is graduating, the team can expect to remain stable next year with the help of returning underclassmen Eric Williams, Adil Rizvi, Mike Thomas, Will Gay, Doug Chu and David Volweiler. Unfortunately the team is also losing seniors, Harry Lawson, Athanasios Pardalis, Darin Grey, Ross Tobin and David Hall. With the help of the veteran underclassmen, next year's track team looks to be very successful.

This year's Girl's Lacrosse team had a good season that is not illustrated by their record. They finished with a record of 4-6-1. They started the season with four disappointing losses but after that they began to pull it together. They began to improve a lot and managed to beat teams that they had lost to before. They played powerful public schools like Scarsdale and Pelham and they beat Mamaroneck for the first time that anyone could remember. Although they are losing seniors Meg Maher (MVP), Nancy Goler (all-county), Jana Craston, Rebecca Rubin, Meg Cimino, Maria Constantino, and Ginay Tannenbaum, the rest of the team hopes to improve their record and have a strong season next year. Next year's captains are Jackie Stern and Ruth Walter.

This year's Boys' Varsity Tennis team had a good season. They finished by coming in third in the Fairchester League tournament which is highly competitive. They are losing seniors, Bill Park, Chuck Toepfer, Doug Hill and Chuck Bracken. The doubles team of Bracken and Hill had only one defeat in the Fairchester League and they made All League. The team will remain strong next year with the help of such strong juniors as Brandon Carrey, Rich Yaffa, Eric Wechsler, Takao Hensch, and David Kaskel.

Two girls' tennis pros

The Girls Tennis team also had a good season. This year's MVP was Shevaun Mackie. Shevaun will be captain next year and expects the team to have a successful season next year. They are losing seniors, Robin Rituno and Linda Paris (who is known for her amazing talking capabilities). In any rate, this young team should be impressive next year and spectators are always welcome at the matches.

Baseball

The Boys' Varsity Baseball team had an OK season. They had a slow start but once they got moving, they did extremely well. Since many seniors had graduated the year before, many very young players were used. They did extremely well; Freshmen like Russ Ronson, J. P. Marra and John Mackie. This year the MVP was shared by two outstanding players; Kevin Dames and Tom Anglero (next year's captain). They should be good next year as they are only losing three seniors; Mike Bauer, David Rosoff and Steve Horowitz (captain).

Softball

The Girls' Softball team did not have their best season ever. They finished with a record of 2-8-1. They are losing Liz Ingram, Amy Jo Knowles and Lisa Marra. This year's MVP was Margaret Scarcella who batted .636 this year. The team hopes to be more successful next year under the leadership of Margaret Scarcella and Laura Polsen.

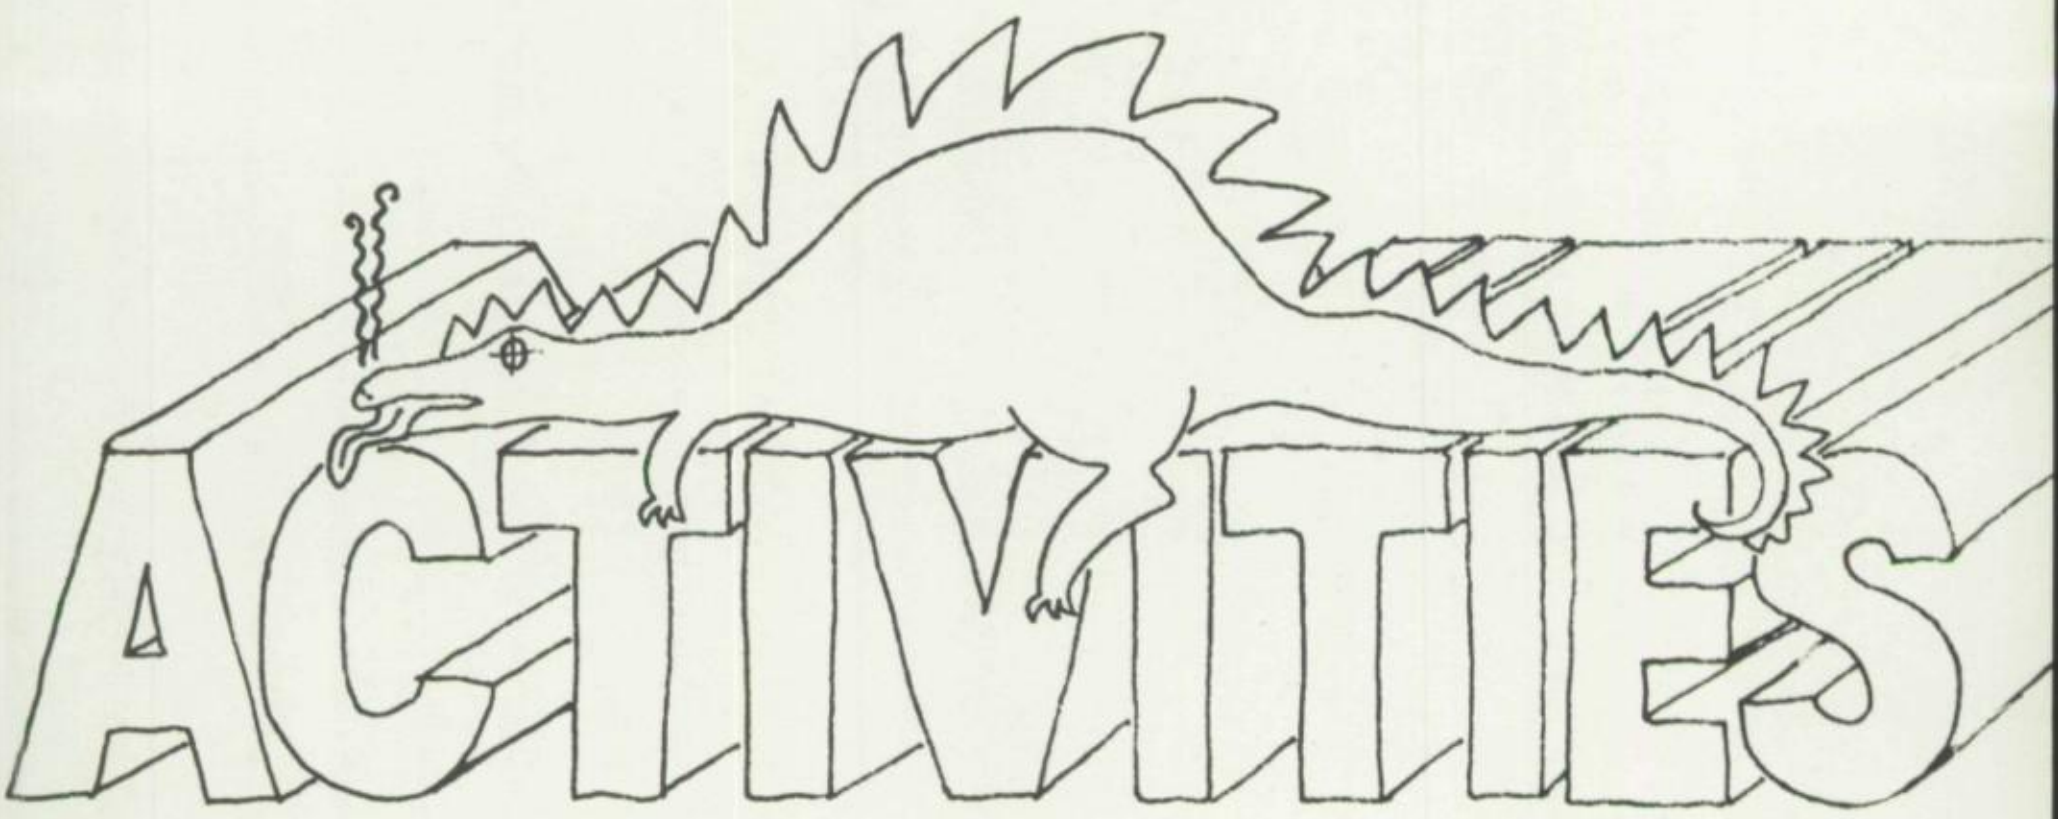
Boys' Lacrosse

The Boys' Lacrosse team had a very successful season this year. The team, coached by Mr. Forster and Mr. Reid, finished with a 13-2 record. They also captured first place in the Ivy league and third place in the Fairchester. Although they are losing seniors Mark Heyert (known for his great team spirit and enthusiasm), Henry Lombard, William Jelineck and Bob Akin, the team expects to be strong again next year. The team consisted mostly of sophomores; two outstanding sophomores shared the MVP award; Herb Allen and Kaveh Khosrowshahi. They were assisted greatly by Captain Kurt Hetzel, Dave Britton and C. Sanford (goalie). Next year should be a strong one for this young and skilled team.



ACTIVITIES

The Hilltop

Hackley's yearbook, The Hilltop, has again come up with a unique and memorable summary of another season on the Hill. Its editors for the past year were Cathy Schulman, Katy Sugahara, and Rudd Mackenzie. With advice from Mrs. Eastman, the busy staff developed a medieval theme for the 1983 issue. The candy-grams delivered by the yearbook elf became Hackley's most successful student-operated fund raiser. Enjoy the memories!

Community Council

Hackley's Council of 1982-83 led an invigorating and productive calendar for the school. The school officers were President Mark Heyert, Vice President Linda Paris, and Treasurer Meg Cimino, who worked hard to organize events for the student body. In cooperation with the Dance Committee they helped finance two successful dances. The Council also joined the Assembly Committee to present Black History Month in February. A single achievement of the student government was Mini Course Day, which offered a wide range of informative activities and guest speaker former Vice President Walter Mondale. Fast Day in November raised funds for OXFAM, a world hunger aid, as students skipped their lunch for a day. Hackley looks forward to another spectacular year with new officers: President Ruth Walter, Vice President Rich Yaffa, and Treasurer Ron Gerber.

Board of Magistrates

The Board of Magistrates is the student-faculty run judicial board for the school. Members were R. Rubin, X. Eikerenkoetter and E. Gerber, the alternates J. Craston and R. Burroughs, and Clerk R. Gerber.

M. Heyert, E. Gerber, Mr. Schneller, M. Maher

Assembly Committee

Another revived activity at Hackley, the Assembly Committee was reintroduced on the Hilltop after almost two decades. Supervisor Emily Gerber collaborated with Mr. Schneller and members Mark Heyert and Meg Maher to organize and regulate the assembly schedule. This year featured Black History Month, a series of three speakers and the Tigertones, vocalists from Princeton. Other assemblies dealt with the Middle East question; a consolate representative spoke on behalf of Israel and an Arab League member supported the Palestinians. These were followed by a student debate on the same topic. The calendar ended with a public speaking contest on May 9th.

The Dial

Hackley's journalist, editors and staff of the Dial, informed the student body about events at school and elsewhere throughout the year. The editors and Mrs. Gibbon presented many creative ideas in black and white. Hackley also enjoyed articles written by non-members of the staff and a great innovation, the Guess-Who. The people at the press have done it again.

Hilltop Sports

Twice as a supplement to the Dial, Hilltop Sports was begun this year. Its small staff added more variety to the already popular school paper with reports on athletics during the fall and winter. Since most of the staff are underclassmen, Hilltop Sports will return to bring you the athletic news.

Chorus

The Chorus held two evening concerts this year for parents, in the winter and spring. Conducted by Miss Harrell, Hackley's vocalists sang the Alma Mater with the students during assemblies, a move to restore school spirit.

Model United Nations

Our student delegations attended the Harvard and Georgetown Model United Nations conferences. In December, Hackley represented Australia in Boston, in February the Congo and Madagascar, which won the second place award.

Black and Grey Key

Hackley's club of enthusiastic students who represent our school for visitors did a terrific job in showing their utmost hospitality. With the vendor's cart purchased last year, the Key Club sold food at sports events, as usual. During the cold months, members helped parents and prospective students find their way about. In the spring, they assisted with Hackley's second annual benefit.

Dance Committee

Revived by Rudd MacKenzie and Mark Heyert last year, the Dance Committee doubled its success with two sensational dances held in the Lower School. The one in autumn celebrated Halloween with costumes, the other Valentine's Day, Sadie Hawkins style. Disc jockeys John Small, Harry Lawson and Tom Dodd spun the records, Key Club sold refreshments, and the Dance Crew collected admission given to school funds.

Drama Club

This year Hackley's Dramatic Club branched out into a new form, the Broadway musical, with Gershwin's Of Thee I Sing. Complete with bathing beauties, cavorting judges, and bumbling politicos, the cast, under the direction of Mr. Philips, and accompanied by a pit orchestra, romped through the political scene, showing the audience that Love, indeed, was sweeping the country.

Chess Club

The players of this medieval contest of mental combat meet in the Admissions department after school. Although the club had no matches against other schools this year, members competed against each other in order to improve their skills.

Math Team

The top mathematicians compete each year by taking a series of six tests with various types of problems. The advisor, Mr. Walsh, selects the three best scores to be compared with the scores of students from other schools.

Mental Olympics

The two teams which competed in the Olympics of the Mind were both successful. The projects were the construction of a machine and the performance of a self-written skit, with their ingenuity and creative imagination, the upper school took third and second places. The team was coached by Dr. Szabo.

The middle school Olympians are the only team to place in everything they have been in since the beginning of their league. This year they were regional victors and were invited to the state championships, which were snowed out.

Upper School Bands

Gleaming brass and a pounding beat enriched the spirited atmosphere on campus. In his debut, Mr. Christos conducted the Band for the Drama Club's musical and played in Hackley's jazz band for the Talent Show. Both bands have shown great improvement and more variety this past year.

Spring Trip to England

London and Paris sustained the onslaught of 15 Hackley students over spring vacation. Led by their fearless leaders, the Dukeharts, the students swept through two Capitals of Western Europe and the beautiful English Countryside, seeing the traditional tourist attractions of both major cities as well as Bath, Winchester, Salisbury, Stonehenge and Wells. Highlights included a boat ride down the Thames, a tour of the Tower of London, a visit to Roman and 18th Century Baths, picnics near small churches, and on buses, pub lunches and ethnic dinners, and a week in Templecombe, a rural village in Somerset in an old Victorian house which became home.

Aside from the sightseeing, the students discovered the European nightlife. One night, everyone went to a "Tears for Fears" concert in Poole. "Tears for Fears" was the number one band on the pop charts. As interesting as the music were the kids with mutli-colored hair and those with safety pins in their ears.

The Hackley students who remained in New York were quite astonished by the new clothes and hairstyles of the England group. The trip was a great success — for the students, the Dukeharts, and even four-year-old Jacquie. Knowing how much the students want to return to Europe, this Spring trip should become an annual affair.

Yes, it was all work and no play!

Picture a view of the gorgeous northern New York countryside with its many lakes, and fleeting glimpses of old forts and other relics from the past, while sitting comfortably in a modern train with all of the conveniences to protect you from the elements. This was the way in which a group of six enthusiastic French students and one French IV teacher made their way to Montreal, Canada for a five day study trip.

On a bleak and rainy Saturday morning, the trip organized by the management of IBM Canada's translation center and led by Mrs. Ella Mae Eastman got underway. Our spirits were not dampened by the weather, as we boarded the Amtrak train "The Adirondack" for Montreal. Seven hours later we arrived in snowy Montreal, where we spent our first night on the town at the world-reknowned "Bar-B-Barn" restaurant for some delicious ribs. We returned to our hotel Chateau Versailles, which acted as our home base throughout the trip, full and ready for a good night's sleep.

The next few days were spent on all sorts of interesting excursions including guided tours of the city, the Musee Des Beaux Arts, and the famous olympic sites, as well as attending the French play "Les Gars." However, what better ways are there to learn French other than by instruction? So we visited one of the best private schools in the Montreal area, Le College Brebeuf. There we attended the morning classes, all in French of course, just like the rest of the students. The students and teachers were all very amicable, and we all soon made friends. Some of us made closer friends than others (right Michael and Emily?)!! In fact, we invited the students at Brebeuf to visit Hackley next year, but some just could not wait that long and came two weeks later.

Another source of education, French style, was given us at the IBM Translation Center, where we were shown the most innovative methods used by IBM for translating English into French and vice versa. At the center we all learned the necessity of computers in all sorts of jobs, even translation. Takao and Ted were also taught a lesson in Canadian law from the best professors on the subject, the Montreal police squad. They were picked up, but easily released, for the petty offense of playing video games under age! (in Montreal one must be 18 to play).

In any event, there is no doubt in anyone's mind that Hackley's first French class trip to Montreal was an overwhelming success. We are all indebted, and grateful, to IBM Canada and Mrs. Eastman, who reserved the hotel, play tickets, guided tours, train tickets, and just for organizing the entire trip. Thanks to them this was a trip that Michael, Emily, Takao, Ted, Susannah, and Laura will always remember.
